The information presented, at this conference, will be important to all professionals and individuals supporting others where trauma is a factor.

This includes but is not limited to, Social workers, Emergency service technicians, physicians, nursing, paramedical EMS workers and other health care staff, Addictions counselors, Military resource supports, Shelter and housing support teams, Peer outreach organizations, Community support workers, Youth and family workers, Disability and rehabilitation workers, Immigration Settlement workers, Aboriginal and Metis counselors, Gerontologists and those who work with seniors, Teachers and educational assistant teams, Policing, probation and parole officers and anyone wanting to better understand how to: help heal, support and engage someone who is stuck and suffering.

TOPICS TO BE COVERED:

- Understanding what trauma is and isn't: trauma is not the difficult life events, but the disconnect from self and others those events trigger
- Trauma as a "fault-free zone"
- How trauma manifests in families across generations, and how it is experienced in the life of the individual
- How parents and children can use this understanding to heal themselves and transform their relationships
- How to support individuals for whom there may not be a "willing partner" for healing a relationship
- How to recognize our own traumas as they show up in interaction with our clients, and how to use that recognition to support healing in them and in ourselves

PARTICIPANTS AT THE CONFERENCE WILL:

- Gather new skills, new levels of understanding
- Feel nurtured, refreshed and energized
- Spend time with like-minded people, make new connection
- Become more comfortable and effective in your work

Included will be lecture-style teaching, personal anecdotes, dyadic interaction, individual coaching, and group discussion, for an immerse and trans-formative learning experience. Participants can expect to emerge with a new and expanded view of themselves and what's possible in their work, and a more spacious understanding of trans-generational family dynamics.
